Washington sporting editors are

The Washington sporting editors are very much impressed with the Alcobaseball team, as shown by several letters received this week, and more particularly by the Sunday articles which appeared in the Washington bapets after the double-header played in Richmond last Saturday.

The engine builders were given the credit of being the fastest bunch of youngsters turned out by any amateur baseball team for many a year, and their team work and clean-cut playing were commented on favorably by the sporting editors in the national capital. To-day W. S. Seamans, of the American Locomotive Company received the following letter from President Robert H. Young, of the Washington Amateur Baseball Commission. This letter will be of interest to Richmond followers of amateur baseball, in that it shows how keenly interested the Washington officials are in the national sport, and also how close the relations are between the officials of Washington and Richmond in the matter of the championship games now being played:

I am in receipt of your favor of the 31st ult., and assure you it was one of the greatest disappointments I ever experienced to be prevented going to Richmond. These things must happen, and I have had so much of it of late that I have rather learned to expect the unexpected.

In accordance with the suggestion of Mr. Shurtleff, I have called on the manager of the Ebbitt House and phoned the Kaleigh and the Continental, and learned that you had addressed each of them for rates. I inspected the rooms that the Ebbitt House propose to give you, and I believe you will do best at that house, considering the spiendid location.

I have also talked with Mr. Griffifth about reservations at the ball game, but will have to take that up further.

I have not yet had time to take that up further.

up the theatre matter because our offerings at this season are not very great.

I think you did very well financially in Richmond, and I shall push the advertising feature of our games next Saturday, and shall try to beat you in money and at play.

I shall write you again, and if you will give me your phone call, I shall be glad to phone you regarding the weather on Saturday. With kindes: regards, I am,

Yours very truly.

ROBERT H. YOUNG.

The Alco team had a fast and snappy workout yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and they are leaving nothing undone to keep in training and be ready for the double-header in Washington next Saturday. Captain Frank Bigbee is determined that his men shall put up a better game even than they did last Saturday.

Great enthusiasm is being manifestod among the employees of the American Locomotive Company and their friends throughout the city over the prospects of the excursion which the American Locomotive Company will run to Washington next Saturday. The amateur ball players, in particular, throughout the city are very much excited over the prospects of having the opportunity of witnessing these two games.

LIEUT. LEE WINS THE WIMBLEDON TITLE

SEAGIRT, N. J., September 2.—The Wimbledon long range championship of the New England and Middle Atlantic States, the final battle of the nine days' tourney of the National New Jersey and New York Rifle Associations, was won in brilliant form on the 1,000-yard targets by Lieutenants W. A. Lee, United States Navy, with 96 out of a possible 100.

William H. Richards, of New Haven, and Corporal R. E. Cooper, Fifth United States Infantry, took second and third money with 95.

Richards won the 1,100-yard Libbey trophy; Major William B. Martin, New Jersey, was second. To Richards also went the National Rifle Association's gold medal for the highest aggregate in its six matches.

The Seagirt championship (Governor of New Jersey match) on four ranges was won by Corporal Coppedge, of the Marines, who got 188 of the 200. Lieutenant Lee got in second, with 188.

Expresses His Disappointment at Not Roller and Lewis Confident of Win- Ties Yanks in the Sixth and Captures ning-The Seattle Physician Has the Experience, While Lewis Has Youth and Strength in His Favor.

With each of the principals declaring himself confident of victory, overything is ready for the greatest mat contest Richmond has ever seen at the Broad Street Park to-night. Both contestants will go through light practice this morning and rest this afternoon to be on edge and ready to go the limit when the big match starts. It is quite the usual thing for wrestlers and fighters fon the eve of a big battle to claim the victory in advance, but there was probably never a time when both men could make their claims with so little danger of flat contradiction.

Roller has cleaned up the best the country can boast of, and is so much improved in his work in the last year that, not counting big Zbyszko and Americus, the doctor is the king of them all.

The only other American who appears to have a chance with Roller is Ed Lewis. Lewis is a splendid specimen, standing over six feet, weighing not quite as much as Roller, with strength more than equal of the clever doctor, and a real catch-as-catch-can wrestler.

Lewis has been in the spotlight of the wrestling game about three years. Duncan Clark first discovered the "Strangler." Lewis's match with Fred Beell first attracted the attention of the general public. From that moment Lewis has steadily increased his knowledge of the game.

Dr. Roller, who meets Lewis, is one of the finest specimens of manhood any one would want to look at. Straight as an Indian warrior, wide of shoulders, splendidly proportioned, he is a living picture that derights the eye. As graceful as a panther in his movements, as quick to take advantage of an opponent as a tiger and with muscles as pliable and powerful as those of a bull dog, he stands on the steps to the world's heavyweight wrestling champlonship throne. Zybszko and Americus are the only men who are able to keep him from taking the scepter.

Lewis and Roller had a heated argument yesterday regarding the rules to govern the match. Lewis held out for barring the toe hold, while Roller insisted that the hold be allowed. The match came near being called off. Lewis then suggested that all holds be allowed, this including the strangle, which is barred in every city where the game is conducted.

Roller, rather than disappoint the local lovers of the game, reluctantly agree to the conditions imposed by Lewis, so if the authorities do not interfere the match will be featured with every hold known to the wrestlers, and should prove a rattling go from the start.
